

A photograph of a Maori man standing outdoors, pointing towards a chalkboard. He has long dark hair and wears a yellow headband with three white feathers and a thick white necklace. The chalkboard behind him features a circular diagram divided into eight segments by radial lines. Each segment contains handwritten text in Maori script. Above the circle, the word "Māhi-ti" is written in large letters. Below the circle, there are additional handwritten notes and another smaller diagram consisting of several connected points forming a polygonal shape. The background shows a clear blue sky and some green foliage on the left.
